Helix office building

The modern office complex consists of four five-storey building units grouped around a central green courtyard. In this way, the Helix forms an independent, self-contained unit within the Städtler Allmend. Striking, urban and different.

Details

The Helix in Cham consists of four modern buildings around a central courtyard. The attractive façade consists of lots of glass and façade cladding in dark brown, which gives the building an elegant appearance. The building not only offers office space but also several places to spend time, thanks to the beautiful inner courtyard, as well as several terraces and a green roof.

The architectural images were provided by Regine Giesecke.
